They live in the water.
They are filter feeders
They are commonly called sponges.

They live in the ocean.
They have radial symmetry.
They have only one body opening.
They have stinging cells.
Jellyfish, sea anemones and coral belong to this

They have radial symmetry.
Many have spiny skin.
Starfish, brittlestars, sea urchins and sea cucumbers belong to this

They have a nerve cord running down backs.
Most have an endoskeleton.
They have bilateral symmetry.
Birds, fish, reptiles,

Porifera

Cnideria

Nematode

Platyhelminthes

Mollusc

Echinoderm

Arthropod

Chordate

