Taboo – stem cells and cloning

clones	therapeutic cloning	gene offspring nucleus identical Dolly the sheep stem cells	stem cells nucleus egg cell cell division embryo	DNA characteristic chromosome code genetic
DNA	Dolly the sheep	embryo
genetic code nucleus chromosomes double helix	cloned clone first animal stem cell	division fertilised implantation foetus cells
blastocyst	stem cells	cells
stem bundle division cells fertilised	undifferentiated clone bone marrow embryo genetic	stem animal plant tissue blood muscle

nucleus	egg cell	mutation
genetic code DNA chromosomes cell	gametes sex female sperm ovary	genetic code DNA nucleus variation
identical twins	inheritance	sperm cell
chromosomes DNA parents fertilised same	DNA genetic genes characteristics offspring	gametes testes egg sex male
tissue	chromosomes	cell division cells organs differentiated muscle nerve	genetic code DNA genes nucleus	clone blastocyst embryo mitosis meiosis

Taboo – stem cells and cloning

Taboo is a word guessing game. The objective is to have your team guess the keyword on top of a card. This must be accomplished without using the word itself or any of the additional 'taboo' (forbidden) words listed on the card.

1. Students work in teams (an even number with at least two people in each team).

2. Each team needs a set of cards. It is worth copying each set onto different coloured paper and/or laminating them to ensure that you have all the cards back at the end of the activity in order to reuse them.

3. The cards need to be cut out, and then shuffled and placed face down.

4. An individual from the first team takes the card from the top of the pile, and then describes the word at the top of the card without using the words below. The rest of their team must guess which word is described. Participants are not allowed to say 'sounds like' or 'rhymes with' and no gestures, sounds or drawings are permitted.

5. Should the individual use one of the taboo words, a member of the opposing team may challenge and the individual must move on to the next word.

6. Each individual is allowed two minutes to describe as many words as possible to the players in their team (a longer time may be required to allow more descriptions to take place) before play passes to the next team. There are no penalties for wrong guesses.

7. For each word which is correctly guessed, the playing team receives one point. Prizes/merits could be handed out to the winning team in each group.