1. Carbon dioxide from your breath reacts with the calcium hydroxide in the limewater which produces a milky substance called calcium carbonate and also water

2. Magnesium oxide is produced when magnesium metal burns in oxygen

3. The iron in the steel wool reacts with copper sulphate to produce iron sulphate and copper

4. Solid lead iodide, aqueous potassium ions and aqueous nitrate ions are produced when lead nitrate and potassium iodide solutions are mixed together.