The Immune System

Pathogens can enter your body in a number of ways.

Method of Entry	Examples of Diseases

First Line of Defence

The first line of defence is to prevent the pathogens from entering the body.

Skin is an effective barrier.

_____

_____

Fluids such as tears and saliva have antiseptic properties.

_____

_____

Air entering the nose is filtered by hairs in the nostrils.

_____

_____

Pathogens entering the digestive system are usually killed by stomach acid. _____

_____

Second Line of Defence

Once a pathogen enters the

_____

_____

This is called _____.

Damaged cells _____

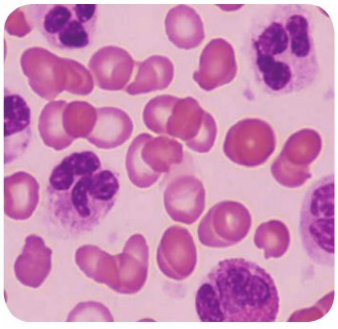

_____

In the blood _____

_____

Dead neutrophils

_____

Third Line of Defence

The lymphatic system
_____

_____

In areas of the lymphatic system there are swellings called
_____

Lymph nodes contain large numbers of
_____

_____

Macrophages are similar to neutrophils.
_____

Lymphocytes make chemicals called _____

Antibodies cause pathogens to
_____

_____

Antibodies

Each pathogen
_____

The first time the lymphocytes -
_____

_____

The next time your immune system
_____

_____

You are now immune to the pathogen.

Temperature

To help fight
infection,_____

Pathogens that enter the body
_____

When your body temperature is higher,
_____

_____

