Joining Sentences – Living Together

Use an appropriate conjunctive to join the following sentences to make a compound sentence:

1. The biosphere is the place where all life as we know it exists.
   It consists of the surface of the Earth and its atmosphere.

   What does it refer to?

2. An ecosystem is a system formed by organisms interacting with each other.
   It also includes the non-living surroundings.

   What does it refer to?

3. The organisms in an ecosystem are interdependent.
   They depend on each other for survival.

   What does they refer to?

4. Commensalism is an interaction between two organisms.
   Only one of them benefits.
   The other one is not affected

   An example is _____

5. Mutualism is an interaction where both the organisms benefit from the relationship.
   Neither is harmed.
   In many cases, neither organisms can exist without the other.

   An example is _____

6. Parasitism is an interaction where one type of organism lives on or in another type of organism.
The parasite obtains food and shelter from its host.
They often harm or even kill their host.

What does they refer to?

An example is _____